IT WAS LIKE NOTHING WE'D EVER EXPERIENCED BEFORE.

But I'm setting ahead of myself. Like most Saturday's we woke early. I shot out for an emergency latté run. We waded through the pile of weekday papers, finally getting to Saturday. I noticed an ad for a play we liked. At a place called Theatre in the Woods. Sounded different. We called to make reservations. A guy named Zoltan told us they only play to five couples at a time and we were the fifth. He seemed a bit odd. but we were up for an adventure. First we had a few errands to run. Return last night's movies. Check. Pick up the carpets from the cleaners. Check. Buy vegetables and extra-old cheddar from the farmer's market. Check. We were eager to leave the city behind for the day so we hit the highway early. We drove with the windows down, fresh air and eighties ska washing away the work week. Stopped at a garage sale. Picked up a mission oak rocking chair. Stopped at a village bakery. Picked up the best butter tarts ever. Stopped to take photos of an ancient collapsed barn. Finally, after passing it three times, we found the turn-off Zoltan had described. We followed the narrow dirt road as it snaked through thick fe The sun was almost down an were getting a bit sp
